With a history in sports presenting and a career that started as host on Otago University's now-infamous Cow TV, Andrew Mulligan certainly has experience dealing with the unexpected – a useful skill that no doubt comes in handy as an entertainer.

Familiar already to Prime and Sky Sport viewers every weeknight on The Crowd Goes Wild, sports obsessed Andrew is an old-hand at presenting, producing and reporting, and has previously appeared as a presenter and reporter at three Olympics and two Commonwealth Games for Sky Sport.

Andrew has also had more than 10 years and has been on breakfast radio since 2011 on Radio Sport - and is now a co-host on the new look Morning Rumble show on The Rock.

For the past few years, Andrew has been the live presenter/in-game match enhancement for all All Blacks test matches played at home & is the Sky Sport Commentator for the Breakers Basketball coverage. He is also the voice of Rebel Sport.

He has MC'ed a wide variety of events from the Hawkes Bay Sports awards to the Halbergs and the Steinlager Rugby awards and everything else in between and is more than capable in front of a small crowd or a large event.

With over 50,000 followers on Twitter, Instagram, Snapchat and Facebook, his message is amplified daily and can be a real asset for any brand looking to align themselves with him.

Andrew Mulligan was entertaining and well prepared, he had really done his research and has a fantastic knowledge about sport. Halberg Trust would recommend him to MC or interview for any sporting event. The great thing is that he can offer humour when needed but also a very professional performance. We hope to use him again in the future.
