Multi-talented broadcaster, Marty Hehewerth, has spent the last 10 years working across radio and television sharing the top charts of today's pop music.

His candid personality, quick wit and good banter made him one of The Edge's most successful night show hosts. Marty hosted the popular show, The Edge 30, for three years with partner in crime, Steph Monks.

He also spent many hours in front of the camera on SMASH TV, where his antics would find him in all sorts of hilarious situations.

Marty caught the travel bug in 2016, packed up his life, and spend the following 7 months backpacking across Europe with his partner. After coming back to New Zealand's sunny shores, he spends his time exploring all that this stunning country has to offer.

In late 2017 Marty was ready to return to broadcasting and was snapped up by his former employer Mediaworks, and back into his role as night show host on The Edge.

As a man who is never short on words or good jokes, Marty does a terrific job at MCing events. He has hosted Homegrown for three years running, Stage Challenge (also for three years, in both Auckland & Christchurch), the Hallensteins Awards, has presented awards at the NZ Music Awards, and was a panelist at the recent Nespresso Product Launch.

Marty has also grown a significant social media following, and has a real knack for nailing a brief on time and on brand.
