Whether it's co-hosting his hit radio show; performing at gigs, producing tunes or planning his next celebrity interview, there are very few moments in the day that DJ Sean Hill isn't thinking about, talking about, playing or creating music.

Co-host of The Edge Nights (with BFF Haylee Clarke) and resident Edge DJ, Sean lives out his passion every day, helping to break new music, chat to listeners from all walks of life around New Zealand, and just generally push the boundaries of the airwaves with stunts and jokes he suspects would have got him in a lot of trouble back in his school days.

Relaxed, easy-going, humorous and down-to-earth, Sean grew up in a tight-knit family in Tauranga, where he spent his down-time surfing, reading, busking and tutoring guitar.

He moved to Auckland in 2015 after studying at the New Zealand Broadcasting School to take up an intern position at The Edge. After a series of station internships, Sean was appointed as music director of The Edge, where his innate talent for identifying a good beat and collating a killer playlist led to hosting his own show in 2019 alongside Haylee.

Sean has been performing as a DJ since 2013 and has worked with corporate clients including Audi and Auckland Council, and has held residencies at favourite Auckland nightspots Degree, Chapel and The Nightingale.

Highlights of his career to date include performing the opening DJ set for Hugh Jackman at Spark Arena in 2019; meeting Taylor Swift; interviewing Katy Perry, Lewis Capaldi, George Ezra and Anne Marie; DJing festivals both in NZ and overseas, and, more curiously, staging a live music festival from a Pak 'n' Save (aptly-named PAK'N'RAVE 2020)!

The only rival to Sean's enthusiasm for music is travel; in 2019 he spent three months backpacking through Asia (Thailand, Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos,); in 2018 he toured Japan, China and Korea; in 2018 it was South America.

He's also an ardent basketball fan, playing three - four times a week; watching as many NBA games as his schedule allows; and a voracious reader.

Sean is a staunch supporter of PRIDE culture and events; "I'm passionate about everyone being their truest self and not feeling ashamed of it."

He has a lot of experience behind the mic and has voiced a number of campaigns; his vibrant, compelling tone is perfect for youth brands and events.

Sean has also made a stellar debut on the MC circuit in the past two years; he MC'd the LAB stage at Jim Beam Homegrown 2019; the 2019 Lincoln University Garden Party and Fieldays 2019.

His fresh and dynamic approach is perfect for events and campaigns that need a shot of energy and originality!
